Profiles in Pride

are evident in every individual attending VHS. For each student is a profile of pride — of pride in achievement, pride in participation, pride in athletics, pride in personalities. These profiles are not ones of haughty arrogance. Rather, they are profiles of composure during the national anthem, silhouettes of weary backs hunched over mounds of books, faces misshapen by sorrow or joy after a vigorous game, outlines of relieved juniors on prom night. Our pride is shown through the profile of each individual, combined to form one well-balanced profile of our school.

right—Newly installed study hall bookshelves augment library facilities.

below—Orientation day introduces new students to VHS. Representatives of the senior class direct novice students through the school, explaining rules, goals and activities.

A student body united by pride in its new and traditional aspects,

right—Fans buy tickets at the Boucher field ticket office. Teachers serve as ticket-takers at both football and basketball games.

below—Mr. Dixon and Mr. Hall, custodians, pause for a moment of relaxation during their busy schedule.

right—Classroom doors open to new vistas of education. Library doors invite students to use the vast storage of knowledge contained within its enclosure. Study hall doors lead to a quiet, studious atmosphere.

below right—Tennis shoes, oxfords and flats shuffle through VHS corridors between classes.

below—Mr. Ciciora enforces the one-way stair regulation. With an increase of students, the one-way stair rule has been resumed.

... in its actions of service and recreation,

left—Culinary artists Mrs. Lois Walsh, Mrs. Cecile Miller, Mrs. Bernice Burnicon, Mrs. Anna Williams and Mrs. Ruth Berrier prepare a tasty meal for VHS students.

below—Custodians Mr. Richard Rosenbaum, Mr. Ben Thiesen, Mr. Les Hall and Mr. A.W. Dickson maintain an efficiently run school. Custodians contribute long hours of work before, during and after school in keeping up building maintenance.

left—Students wait in the lunch line which is regulated by faculty members on noon duty.

middle—Student nurse, Nancy Howe, cares for three patients in the nurse's office. Volunteer student nurses, under the direction of Mrs. Bauer, are on duty every hour of the school day.

below—"Who's gonna win tonight?" is one question always discussed at a pep session. Added enthusiasm for the game that night is sparked by an afternoon pep session.

series—Boucher Gym undergoes new structural innovations. A completely new termite-proof gym floor and a rather new mercury vapor lighting system was installed during the beginning months of school. The previous floor had served for 37 years, and several sandings until it fell prey to termite infestation.

above—Honored athletes receive awards at the annual banquet for fall sports. Banquets are held after every sport season to acknowledge the participants in their respective sports.

left—Another grading period is over and Mike Dodd is eager to return his report card. Grade cards are issued on the Wednesday following the last week in the six weeks. Students return cards to a box across from Mr. Telle's office.

below left—Some students take advantage of the hour long lunch period for studying. Students eat during two lunch periods, from 11 o'clock to 12 o'clock and from 12 o'clock to 1 o'clock.

below—Suspense mounts as the seventh game of the World Series decides the destiny of the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Yankees. Avid baseball fans watch the game on the library television after school.

... in its diversified components of school life above.—Bus service transports hundreds of students to and from school everyday. Students from all Valparaiso Community Schools are entitled to bus transportation.

above right.—Bicycles are a popular means of transportation for those who cannot seem to make that "long walk" to school.

right.—Florence Armalavage and Dorothy Clifford paint signs for the pep buses. Volunteer Pep Club members are in charge of painting bleacher signs for all home games, pep bus signs for away games and the traditional paper hoop.

...combines its various elements through a strong bond of Pride.

above—New this year to VHS is the teachers' lounge. Previously a classroom, now, a lounge for teachers providing a quiet atmosphere for grading papers, eating lunch or talking over the problems of the day.

left—Dick Brindle, in need of a pencil, purchases a green and white Valparaiso High School pencil from the pencil machine.

right—The teachers' parking lot, located on the south side of the gym is used for the faculty and driver's training cars.

middle—Jim Siewin and Bob Urschel scrutinize the art classes' modern sculptures. Art works are displayed around the school to acknowledge the work of the students.

below—Soon the gym will vibrate with the noise of a basketball game, but, for a few minutes, a haunting silence exists within its walls.

Tradition Captivates Homecoming

right—Under the glare of Boucher Field lights, Vikings fight for a Homecoming victory.

below—Vikings slash through the paper-covered hoop to carry on another VHS tradition.

Christmas Spirit Radiates through VHS

right—Couples enjoy an evening of pre-Christmas festivity, made possible by the following committee chairmen: Carla Schramm, stage; Paula Domke, center; Tina Smith, sides; Phyllis Racette, band backdrop; Suzette Reinert, entrance; Lynn Anderson, refreshments; Jill Johnson, publicity; Marge Burrus, bids.

below—The Carolers, under the direction of Mr. Hurst, present a Christmas concert in conjunction with the Valparaiso High School Choir. The concert, "Prelude to the Holidays," was performed on December 23, in the First Methodist Church.

Pride in Achievement

embodies all phases of academic activities: the seventy-eight percent of the school day we spend attending classes, the curriculum varying from machine shop to Latin to physical education, the newly adopted educational methods, the annual achievement placement tests, the unobserved yet essential administration maintaining efficiency, teachers teaching, counseling, criticizing and providing insight to an adult life; these contribute to our pride in achievement.

David Pankake, new this year to the Valparaiso School System as curriculum director, aids the professional staff in making decisions that tend to develop continuity for the twelve year public school experience. The school systems are confronted with the task to provide formal learning for youth who will engage in work after high school as well as for those who seek higher education. In order to effectively prepare our youth, the twelve or thirteen year span has been divided into one-year segments designated as grades or grade levels. To insure that wasteful duplication or unkind omission is avoided the teachers with the curriculum director program the content for each grade level.

This year the arithmetic and mathematics books are up for adoption, and the teachers, the superintendent with the curriculum director, Dr. Pankake, decide the material for the ensuing five years. New approaches to mathematics are planned in accordance with the new material. In subsequent years similar situations will exist in each of the major subject matter fields. This is the sphere within which our new curriculum director works. He works with people — classroom teachers, administrators, members of the Board of Education, the student body and the community. For he is responsible to the community for his work. The curriculum director is concerned with preparing today's youth for participation in an up-coming world.

Proficient Administrators Guide VHS

Mrs. Gene Myers
President

Mr. Joseph Durand
Vice-President

Dr. D.P. LaCount
Secretary

Mr. Preston Platt
Treasurer

The Board of Education develops school policies which will best promote the education in Valparaiso. The Board is appointed by the City Council every four years and the offices are rotated every year. Capability and a profound interest in the education of the community's children are qualities of board members. Providing good educational experiences is the chief business of the school system under the board. Mrs. Gene Myers, president, Mr. Joseph Durand, vice-president, Dr. D.P. LaCount, secretary, Mr. Preston Platt, treasurer, Mr. Mann Spittler, member, and Dr. David Pankake, curriculum director, and Mr. G. Warren Phillips, superintendent.

G. Warren Phillips, superintendent of Valparaiso Community Schools, as the executive officer of the Board of Education, puts into effect the policies of the board and through his capable principals manages all school personnel. To the school system, he is leader, co-ordinator and advisor; to the teaching profession, he is analyst, planner and spokesman.

Mr. Mann Spittler, Jr.
Member

Dr. David Pankake
Director of Curriculum

Mr. G. Warren Phillips
Superintendent

left— King Telle, principal of VHS, is the administrator of all academic, social and athletic functions of the school. As such, he is responsible for all curricular programs and teacher assignments. He is also responsible for all VHS extra-curricular financial affairs and contracts with businesses affecting extra-curricular activities. Placed in the center of manifold, and often conflicting problems affecting teacher-student-parent relationships, he is both mediator and administrator.

above— Mrs. Betty Price serves as registrar of VHS and secretary to Mr. Telle. As secretary she compiles school records and co-ordinates the various activities of the principal's office.

below— Miss Anita Chilian works as secretary to Mr. Cimora. She records attendance data and handles the bookkeeping of the extra-curricular fund.

below left— Mr. Dale Cimora, in his first year as assistant principal, assumed the responsibilities and duties of Mr. James Mundy when the 1964 school year began. Mr. Cimora is in charge of all student activities such as student monitors and Student Council. He is also responsible for attendance records for the state, locker assignments and the management and bookkeeping of the extra-curricular fund.

Capable Leaders and Secretaries Maintain Consistency Throughout the School above left—Thomas Roberts, in his capacity of VHS industrial co-ordinator, makes the arrangements for students to work in private industries and receive credit in the industrial arts courses. He also supervises the system-wide building maintenance program and school bus transportation schedules and routes.

above—Mrs. Grace Rickard serves as secretary to Mr. Phillips and also records the minutes of the school board meetings.

left—Mrs. Isabelle Froenicke is in charge of the bookkeeping of the financial affairs for the entire school system.

below—Mrs. Opal Morgan, new this year to the superintendent's office, operates the switchboard and acts as receptionist for the administration building.

Preparing Today's Youth for Tomorrow's Challenges

VHS can be proud of its advancements in the academic field. This year the English department is undergoing a new system of course rotation. For the first time, both literature and composition are offered during the same semester. Also this year, foreign language courses are being further improved by the increased use of audio-visual aids. The social studies department is using a completely new series of books and work books. Gradually the science and math departments are gearing their courses more and more toward the advanced student, yet providing stable and enlightening courses for all students. They are now making plans for further department revision with Dr. Pankake's assistance.

above — Mr. Henkel, head guidance counsellor of the school, advises students, arranges curriculum schedules and assists students in making post-high school plans and choosing courses geared toward future occupations.

below — Mr. Hengesbeck, chemical engineer from American Oil Research Division, acquaints pre-engineering students with college engineering programs.

Counseling the Leaders of Tomorrow above — Paul Weissert speaks on college life at the annual college day panels held on December 23. Graduates return to familiarize seniors with post-graduation activities right — Mr. Hildreth counsels a senior in her college preparatory program. He meets with seniors to discuss post-graduation plans below — Mrs. Bauer, girls' guidance director, counsels Lenore Koenig

Science and Math Curriculums Upgraded for Advanced Studies

above — The hyperbola $x^2 - y^2 = 4$ is a familiar equation to the second year Algebra student. Plotting points, statistics and determinants are subdivisions of Algebra 3 and 4.

below — Protractor, compass and straightedge are familiar instruments to the geometry student. Chuck Nightingale and Donnie Newsom apply their knowledge to prove a theorem.

Foreign Languages Provide a Basis for Modern Languages

right — German students practice vocabulary and conversation. Practical application of the fundamentals of the language help the student to understand it.

below — Under the supervision of Mrs. Bauer, students explain in Spanish the intricacies of dialing a telephone number. Practical application of the language facilitates learning.

below right — Mrs. Bauer employs the use of the tape recorder as an aid for her second year Spanish students.

left—Mr. Hildreth lectures about cultural biases and aspects of the world's social environments.

below—The study of World Geography encompasses global terrain. Donna Gunsaulus and Fred Grady examine meridians under Mr. Herrick's direction.

Social Studies Instills Pride in Our Heritage left—Paul Frye uses the map to emphasize a point being debated in a panel discussion below—Mr. Edquist lectures on the problems of small businesses. Financing ever-expanding large businesses is discussed during the semester in Economics.

below left—Grecian history seems to be more comprehensible to World History students when depicted through movies.

Critical Analysis of Our Language, Both Spoken and Written

left — Composition is vital to academic success. Mrs. Bowman teaches theme organization, punctuation and term paper writing.

above—Source of abundant information, the card catalogue assists the student in selecting books.

left—Seniors work on "isms" which form a basis for understanding philosophy and its aspects as related to literature.

below—Oral recitation by Paul Simmons stimulates class participation in a discussion of sentence pattern to explore nuances of meaning through word arrangements.

Business Courses Produce Future Career Men and Women right—Co-ordinated fingers peck out words, sentences and paragraphs to develop the student into a precis on typist.

below—Practice determines a skilled stenographer. Shorthand is an essential part of the duties of a secretary. Two years of shorthand are now taught for the aspiring secretary.

above Beth Cleveland uses the new Heyer duplicator which dittos hundreds of tests, attendance lists and informative material for both students and teachers above right—The over-head projector aids Mr. Wiggins' bookkeeping class. Figures are projected on the blackboard for the entire class to see right—In Business Law, students learn about crimes, torts and misdemeanors. Mr. Wiggins discusses the law of contracts in this semester course.

Vocational Classes Develop Occupational Skills above left—Home nursing curriculum equips the student with invaluable practical knowledge including child care, proper procedures after an accident and accident prevention.

left—Vocational arts is a basic department of VHS's curriculum. Shop enables boys to learn to manipulate large-scale industrial machines.

Health and Safety Emphasizes the Anatomy and Its Care right—Mr. Sweet exhibits a human cranium and phalanges. Actual models facilitate an understanding of bone and joint formations.

below—Health students learn the functions of the heart and its different divisions through lectures by Mr. Sweet. The aorta, ventricle and pulmonary vein are discussed with the aid of plastic heart models.

below right—Other topics such as the digestive system are more fully understood when discussed in smaller groups.

Physical Activities Develop Fit Bodies

above — Boys' Physical Education classes scrimmage on the north lawn. Development of basketball, football and baseball skills help the student to understand the rules of the games they play.

series — Calisthenics are a vital part in the development of a physically fit body. Physical education also teaches sportsmanship and co-operation with others.

right — Girls' Physical Education classes learn basic principles of sports. Speedway, basketball, baseball and volleyball constitute some of the sports the girls learn.

Anticipation and Acceleration Constitute the Mechanics of Driving above—Brake, place in gear, gas — are the instructions Mr Stokes gives his beginning drivers. Bewildered beginning drivers sometimes do many unusual stunts like forgetting to turn on the ignition.

below—Judy Ashton demonstrates the quickest way to change a flat when a man is not around. Mr. Stokes, Marie Hannon and Linda Arnold offer no help.

Insight into Beauty Develops from Art Appreciation above—Steve Johnson washes a background with a long-handled brush. Art students use chalks, oil paints and other artistic devices

below—Art students capture the symmetry of trees in India ink. Students discover values in color through the r projects below—Senior staff members labor over the production of the 1965 Valenian. Redrawing layouts, cropping pictures, rewriting copy and pasting-up layouts created a familiar pre-deadline havoc. A record of 920 Valenians were distributed to the largest percentage of the student body ever to order yearbooks.

Pride in Athletics

... binds the muscle power of physiques into one strong body; bare feet driving a sinewy body; helmets, spikes, padded shoulders, arms, legs, piled on a field; warm-up jackets huddling in strategy planning; contorted bodies struggling on the wrestling mat; cupped hands and muscle-toned legs propelling a sleek body through agitated water; endurance, stamina developing with a competitive spirit; it is work, and the result of that exertion is pride — pride in athletics.

Pride in Personalities encompasses all students: those we have selected as friends, team members with whom we have spent strenuous practices, students with whom we have shared classes, fellow committee members with whom we have discussed and reached compromises, familiar faces whom we have spotted in the halls; all these are members of our heterogeneous student body, made homogeneous through our pride in personalities.

Sophomores ... adjusting to high school life,

Sophomores, experiencing the onflow of new names and new faces of upperclassmen, began their first year with pep and enthusiasm. They actively joined the different clubs and contributed athletes to the junior varsity teams. Selecting class rings and decorating for commencement are some functions of the Sophomore class.

Directing the novice Sophomore class are: Bill Anderson, president; Jan Gratton, vice-president; Jill Johnson, secretary; and Bob Delcourt, treasurer. As usual, they encountered minor problems of adjustment to high school life, such as lockers, academic goals and curriculum programs. Now they are prepared to assume their role as juniors.

Juniors ... accepting responsibilities as upperclassmen, Returning to VHS for the second year, the juniors began a new semester with more assurance. The excitement of class rings helped the year start just right. Active participation in clubs and sports and extensive testing developed the juniors into well-rounded, responsible students. Following plans for post-graduation occupations, the juniors branched out into various curriculums: college-bound, business and vocational.

Class spirit was at its highest peak when the class officers: Tom Eiler, president; Rich Raines, vice-president; Marge Burrus, secretary; and Jim Phillips, treasurer, began organizing committees, discussing themes, making arrangements and finally decorating Boucher Gym for the Junior-Senior Prom.

Being the first class to enter VHS as sophomores, the juniors anticipate their senior responsibilities and graduation as the first VHS graduating class on the 6-3-3 school organization plan.

Junior students use cafeteria facilities as a study hall. Each class is designated a room for study. Seniors are assigned to the library; sophomores, to the large study hall, 103.

Seniors ... upholding traditions

Ending one phase of life and looking expectantly toward the future, the 1965 Senior class will remember their four-year high school experience. As freshmen they entered with awe and respect. As sophomores they gained more assurance, becoming well-established in their academic and extra-curricular activities. As juniors they learned responsibility and leadership. As seniors they had to meet exacting demands: to assume a greater role of leadership in the school; to produce term papers and critiques; and to be present at all traditional functions, including Baccalaureate and Commencement. Serving as officers for the Class of 1965 were Tim Harrington, president; Phil Bickel, vice-president; Jane Freeman, secretary; Don Horan, treasurer.

Index

Another year has come and gone, made fast by covering the lives of you, who live on in the '65 VALENIAN

it shows our school cast as a profile, overflowing with dignity, knowledge and pride. It acquaints us with each other — to learn, love and live better as young adults working hard and striving for goals. It tells the story of one full year of life at VHS — for some the beginning; others the end. It represents a school which will always live on — in our memories, and flourish as a place of learning.

WE WILL ALWAYS REMEMBER...

pictures to be taken, copy to be written, layouts to be drawn, pages to be pasted, the frustrations of decision; the suspense of seeing our book, hoping this might be the best VALENIAN ever thanks to my staff's devotion and determination; Peggy and her waxer; Merilee's pica ruler and thumb-nails; Mary, forever cropping mounds of red proofs; Eileen's knowledge of choosing the right words; Nancy's ideas of continuity; Bob and his ledgers; Georgene's senior picture schedules; Judi's carbon-filled hands; the helpful sophomore-junior staff; the support of the student body; and, most of all, Mr Brown — his patience, understanding and guidance.

The '65 VALENIAN is off to the press and we anxiously await a glimpse of the first copies. We can finally relax, for our responsibilities are relieved, but the memories of the book last forever.
